FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1913

Scatter sunshine and keep a tongue of good report.

The bill to make the Presidential term one of six years has been blocked and will go over to the next congress.

We don't like the notion of the government making money shorer. Ours is already too short and further contraction may be positively embarrassing.

It is all settled now. The electoral vote has been cast in Washington showing that Mr. Wilson was elected President and Mr. Marshall Vice President.

Congressman J. J. Whitacre of this district and Gen. Isaac Sherwood of Toledo are making a bitter fight in congress against the two battleships a year program. They believe the money that goes into the big fighting machines should be spent in building good roads, and a lot of their constituents are of the same mind.

Friends of state road commissioner James Marker in all parts of the state are bringing great pressure to bear upon Gov. Cox to continue him in office. It is claimed that he has made a record as a public official that warrants his retention. But it is just possible that Gov. Cox has the name of a gentleman in mind who would also make a good showing for himself and the state if given the place.

Representative John G. Cooper of this county is making strenuous efforts to get through the house his bill against white slavery. The measure comes a law one and if it becomes a law will put an end in Ohio to the blackest of crimes. Mr. Cooper has back of him the best people in the state in his determination to wipe out a monstrous evil, even if it brings him letters encouraging and urging him to greater effort in securing the passage of the law.

Judge David F. Griffith, who last Saturday completed his second term as Probate Judge and retired, made a record of which he has every reason to be proud. It is not overstating it to say that Judge Griffith's administration of the office was one of the most satisfactory the county has ever had. Always a hard worker, careful and painstaking in the discharge of his duties, he not only made an ideal official but won for himself the friendship of all with whom he was thrown in contact. He was an officer whose efficiency will not soon be forgotten. After a short rest Judge Griffith will resume the practice of law.

Should Mahoning county be placed in the same congressional district with Trumbull and Ashland counties, as has been proposed, former congressman James Kennedy of Youngstown can probably be counted upon to be a candidate. He has intimated strongly that he desires to return to congress and a district composed of counties that have in the past rolled up big republican majorities the opportunity would appear promising. But, then, there is the progressive party that must be reckoned with. Dividing the natural republican vote between a standpatter and a progressive would make the election of either extremely doubtful. Democrats are not likely to view the situation with alarm.

GREENFORD

Feb. 13—Greenford grange will hold a box social in K. of P. hall Saturday evening, Feb. 15. Everyone invited. Ladies are requested to bring a box of eatables.

The K. of P. lodge will have a masquerade ball Saturday evening, Feb. 22.

The Stitches club will hold a penny social Saturday evening, March 1. M. C. Clay and C. L. Took took in the auto show at Youngstown Wednesday.

William Brightwell is confined in this room with typhoid fever. M. C. Clay and Son have purchased a new auto truck.

Local coal mines are getting a rush of business here. Greenford is the best head of any town in this part of Buckeye.

The new good roads talk is very profitable and the effort to secure state and county aid to improve important roads in this township.

EUREKA

Feb. 12—Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Longacker have taken possession of their new home.

Mrs. Wm. Brunk is recovering from her illness.

Mrs. Wiley and Mrs. Wm. Culp spent Friday afternoon with Mrs. John Wallace.

John Fohrer and wife spent Sunday at Ira Martin's.

Some of our farmers are putting up ice.

R. A. Beard and family of Youngstown spent Sunday at A. W. Longacker's.

Geo. Miller and family were at Enos Metzler's last Sunday.

A. W. Harrold and family spent Sunday at Ryan Bassinger's.

Some roads in this locality are badly in need of improving.

For a strain you will find Chamberlain's Liniment. It always relieves the pain, removes the soreness, and soon restores the parts to a healthy condition. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by all dealers.—Adv.

JUDGE GRIFFITH'S GOOD WORK

During Two Terms As Probate Judge Is Most Highly Commended.

The retirement of Judge David Griffith marks the end of the first six years of juvenile court in Youngstown. In that time from 800 to 1000 complaints have been considered by the court every year, 600 children have been assisted by the court, 84 boys sent to Lancaster and 6 girls sent to the Delaware home. After long agitation a Detention house was opened April 15, 1912, and since that time 191 boys and 13 girls have been detained there instead of associating with criminals in lock-up or jail. With the exception of a few months Ben Morris was probation officer since the court was established.

Complaints are made to the juvenile court for serious offenses. They are made by parents, schoolboard or school officials, officers of the city, or by anyone else who has knowledge of them. The most frequent offense for which boys are summoned into juvenile court are habitual truancy, petty thieving, burglary, incorrigibility, malicious destruction of property, throwing switches, assault, and placing obstructions on railroad or street car tracks.

Where no affidavit is filed and in most cases there is none, the probation officer visits the home of the child against whom complaint is made. In this way he becomes acquainted with the parents and with conditions surrounding the child; the work, too, is on a more friendly basis than if the parents were haled into court. Both Judge Griffith and Mr. Morris have tried to make the court an instrument of helpfulness.

JUDGE D. F. GRIFFITH
Whose Second Term as Probate Judge Expired Last Saturday Night.

and sympathetic reform, rather than of impersonal and severe correction. They have tried to lead erring boys to do right, and results have convinced them that they have accomplished much more than they could have by merely keeping in mind the rigid enforcement of law. When occasion required they have had to be severe, but usually firmness and kindness have gone hand in hand.

There are more complaints now than there were six years ago. The city is of course much larger, and the older people have become familiar with the court and fallen into the habit of seeking redress there. When the court was first opened the probation officer had to go out and investigate cases that he heard about; but now they come to him. The court is the city. The offenses that came before it now are less serious than they were at first.

The Detention home has been a good institution, separating children from older persons from whom in the old jail, and even in the new, they learned to do much evil. The Detention home is not a place of punishment, but merely a place to keep a child until its case is disposed of. Seven days, or even longer, provided that the court has not decided what shall be done with it, or in the case of runaways or lost children, the parents have not been found. The home is not a place that children are fond of, although the probation officer says it is the best equipped and most sanitary place of its kind that he has seen. Yet, the children are well cared for and have nothing to complain of if they obey the rules. Boys taken from there to Lancaster have often inquired about the grange and mother, and Mr. Reese, brother of girls have been there. A number of children have been sent to the court and the experience has been that children who have been there for a longer time than any other institution to which girls are committed.

Part from the other activities of the court Probation Officer Morris has organized a boys' club, which, since the first of the year, has enlisted 172 members, mostly street boys. It is called the "Do Right" club, and to join it boys have to sign the following pledge:

"To live as a Christian, to obey our parents and respect those who enforce the law. We promise never to play truant, steal, buy, sell, or use street cars, or to pull fire boxes, and never to gamble or short-change anyone; and that we will obey the law and all other ordinances." On Sunday afternoons the boys are privileged to go to the Y. M. C. A. to use the baths and the swimming pool, free, and hear the talks that are given at the Sunday meetings. Mr. Morris is planning to have a button for the membership; On a blue field will be thirteen white stars, representing the 13 original states; and the words "Do Right Club" in red, so that the button will bear the national colors.

These are a few facts about the juvenile court and its work. Probably everyone who has come in contact with it could give an instance to bear out what has been said here. This county was fortunate in having Judge Griffith in probate court when the need of juvenile court became apparent; loving children he welcomed the work that it would make for him, and he has always enjoyed the opportunity that the court afforded him to be of real service. Not only the community in general, but the boys who came before Judge Griffith have profited by his presence on the bench—Youngstown Vindicator.

SALEM

Rev. Homer Eddy of Uniontown, Pa., who has been pastor of the First Baptist church since Rev. L. M. Lathier resigned and left the city some months ago, has been compelled to give up the work on account of failing health, he not being able to make the train trips between his home and this city.

A large number of Odd Fellows from this city went to East Liverpool last Friday night to attend lodge. The degree team from this city conferred the initiatory degree upon several candidates and its work was highly complimented.

Geo. Conner of Winona slipped and fell as he was entering a local hardware store last Friday, and striking his head on a plank severed an artery and received painful bruises.

People traveling on the Stark electric cars have complained about cold cars not a little.

The Unstated Bible class of the Christian church held an enjoyable social Friday night.

The annual industrial picnic has not been given up even if the Pennsylvanian does refuse to run excursion trains for it. The plan now is to have the Erie take the business and run its special trains over the Y. & O. electric line to this city from Washingtonville. This would save much delay and traveling at Washingtonville if the picnic is held at some point on the Erie lines.

Attorney A. V. Johnson, who died last week in Hanover, was well and favorably known in this city. He was stricken with heart trouble and lived only a few minutes. He served as mayor of his town 27 years.

The natural ice harvest is on and hundreds of tons have been cut and stored the past week. Ice cut is about seven inches thick.

In the Mt. Union-Selo college debate Frank Cobourn of this city was chosen by the former as its representative. Frank is a son of K. L. Cobourn, the well known attorney.

Rev. E. T. Butz, pastor of the Lutheran church, has received a call to his former charge in South Baltimore, Md.

A large addition is to be added to the plant of the Sanitary Mfg. Co. The board of directors have asked the stockholders to grant permission to issue $125,000 in bonds to make improvements.

The clothing of John Miller, aged three years, caught fire in some unknown manner Friday and before the flames were extinguished the child was so badly burned that death resulted.

C. Ossman has sold his bakery to L. D. Davis of Titusville, Pa., who will continue the business at the old stand. Mr. O. and wife will locate in East Palestine.

The women of the city have decided that it is up to them to secure for the city a long-needed school building, and it is a safe bet the project will go this time. When it comes to accomplishing what they undertake the women make good.

There appears to be a wave of school troubles in this county, several towns being afflicted. The high school pupils at Hanover do not like it because the board of education deposited Prof. Johnson and have said so in a statement in the public print. At East Palestine two high school boys sent upon Prof. L. M. Newcomer one dark night as he was going home and beat him up so badly that they were sent to Lisbon to answer for their offense.

Mrs. Wm. Summers, aged 22, died Friday night of peritonitis and was buried Monday afternoon in Hope cemetery.

The illegal methods of many loan sharks in different parts of the state have called down the wrath of the people and many of them will be put out of business.

Supt. Dewese will submit a proposition looking to resumption of service on the old street car line.

Burglars were around Tuesday night but were frightened away before securing any plunder.

The contract has been let for building the new five-county tuberculosis hospital in Summit county. Evans & Co. of Columbus will receive $112,000 for the work.

House Monday night and brought in five men. They drew fines of various sizes.

Congressman Whitacre has been requested by the chamber of commerce to go through congress if possible an appropriation for a federal building at this city. He will not be able to get anything this session, however, as appropriations are already made up.

Word comes from the Youngstown hospital that L. V. Schunrenberger, who recently underwent another surgical operation, is getting along nicely and will soon be able to return home.

Frozen water pipes burst in Bolger block Monday and water did much damage to business places.

Mary Noel has been granted a divorce from A. L. Noel.

A large number of grangers were here last Saturday to secure supplies purchased on the co-operative plan by their representative.

Supt. Chaney of Youngstown will speak here next Sunday under the auspices of the Personal Workers' League.
